To Whom It May Concern:

Coulter Baker worked as an intern for exper!ence it for four months, from January 4th through April 29th, 2016. Coulter helped design and develop a leadership training simulation for a major global client.

Coulter was a pleasure to have on the team. He produced an impressive quality and quantity of work, often working well ahead of the rest of the group. Consequently, Coulter was frequently the go-to person for additional work assignments and proved himself to be invaluable on this project.

Coulter has a rare ability to think through the implications of design decisions, catching potential issues early on. He has a fine narrative sensibility, creating relatable and realistic characters. A versatile writer, Coulter consistently delivered—whether developing serious content or welcome comic relief.

On a personal level, Coulter is a joy to work with: empathetic, bright and creative. I would be very happy to work with Coulter again.

If you would like any further information about Coulter's qualifications, please feel free to contact me.

Sincerely,
